

Global Recruitment Solutions

Helping healthcare recruiters to reach further than ever before, all from one, easy-to-use professional career portal.

Competition for healthcare talent is extremely high,
not only locally,
but on a global scale.

This level of competition
can only increase in line with higher demand for healthcare professionals.

To successfully compete in this war for talent,
you need to implement strategies to ensure you grab attention and stand out from the crowd.

You need to think globally.

In a world where quality healthcare candidates have become a highly valued resource, talent acquisition teams have to go beyond a single source or method to find the talent they need. That's why the most successful talent attraction teams exercise a strong command over both inbound and outbound sources of candidates, maximising their reach at every opportunity.

Inbound Recruiting

Attracting candidates who are actively engaged with your brand, searching for new career opportunities even though they may not be ready to apply.

Examples: People find you in a job search, referrals who apply, attending career fairs, applications from social recruiting and visitors to your career site.

Outbound Recruiting

Proactively searching for candidates who may, or may not, be seeking new career opportunities.

Examples: Contacting people through CV databases or professional networking sites, calling for referrals, or inviting interest through social media.

In a perfect world with unlimited resources, your own social media team and little competition for talent, this balancing act would yield great results. However your world is not perfect, resources are anything but unlimited, social networking is resource intensive or remains "something to be implemented", competition is cutthroat and the processes of candidate attraction and engagement becomes yet another priority amongst many others.

So we decided to do something about it.

What if you could access one solution that facilitates both inbound and outbound methodologies ?

Grants access to both active and passive candidates ?

Has a global reach far beyond any other solution today ?

Provides access to your expat workforce ?

Drives interest in your opportunities and highlights your organisation's brand ?

Incorporates best practice in candidate attraction methodologies ?

And what if the entire process could be automated ?

The Job Board. Reinvented.
Welcome to the job board for tomorrow.

MEDICAL.CAREERS.GLOBAL offers the next generation of recruiting in the Social and Mobile era; a fully integrated advertising solution that allows you to promote your employer brand, highlight your career opportunities and increase engagement on a global scale.

By leveraging internet search and social media technologies in all new ways, our solution ensures greater reach and visibility than you have ever achieved before.

Whether you are seeking applicants locally, nationally or internationally, or perhaps you need a way to reach your own expat workforce, this solution provides you with the exposure and tools you need.

Advertise Here. Reach Everywhere.

We've taken everything that's good about a job board and online marketing, and updated them to better meet the needs of professional jobseekers and recruiters for today, and in the future.

- Global Job Board specifically targeting medical and healthcare professions
- Re-engineered to meet the "smartphone" era
- Proprietary Recruitment via Integrated Social Media (PRISM) not available or offered elsewhere
- Automated active and passive recruitment methodologies to manage both inbound and outbound recruitment strategies
- Global audience

In a recent survey of job seeker behaviour, 81% of respondents stated that they would routinely access between 2 and 4 job boards when seeking a new position.

Only 6% stated that print media and professional journals were how they found their next position.

Shetland NHS Board is responsible for health care for a population of around 23,000. Local Hospital and Community Services are provided from the Gilbert Bain Hospital. In addition, visiting consultants from NHS Grampian provide out-patient clinics as well as in-patient and day-case surgery to supplement the service provided by our locally-based Consultants in General Medicine, General Surgery, Anaesthetics and Psychiatry. We have a progressive agenda within the Shetland and work in partnership, not only with other local stakeholders but with the NHS in Scotland as a whole and NHS Grampian in particular.

This is a beautiful part of the world, with a satisfyingly different lifestyle from the metropolitan centres. Those who wish to experience a unique life-work balance thrive here. The diverse nature of Shetland's culture, the stunning scenery, the wildlife, even the local dialect, as well as the spread of different islands all make for particular professional and personal challenges. Shetland is a world where wildlife is truly wild, where otters and seals play in quiet coves, and the air is full of the sound of birds, crowding the jagged cliffs in huge and noisy colonies. There are regular sightings of Killer Whales and superb displays of rare sub-arctic flora.

About NHS Shetland

NHS Shetland is the most northerly Health Service in the country and a unique setting in which to develop your career. We are, of course, a small organisation, with circa 650 staff looking after the health needs of some 23,000 people spread across 15 islands. However, what we lack in size, we more than make up for by way of the tight-knit, highly professional ethos that characterises every aspect of our operations.

Our job – your job should you care to join us – is to provide health-care services to, and strive to improve the overall health of, the population of this most delightful part of the British Isles. As well as the Gilbert Bain Hospital there are Local Community Services, which are usually provided via GPs and Community Nurses working from one of our ten Health Centres and other locations including mobile units and schools. All in all, you'll find a superb degree of professionalism allied to a practical, resolute approach to the challenges of providing healthcare in a northern island setting.

Working at NHS Shetland

What's it like to work in the Health Service in Shetland? Well, the remote and rural nature of our service brings its own challenges, however you can be assured that the facilities and equipment are as good as any you'll get on the mainland. Moreover, the friendliness and professionalism of your new colleagues will help you quickly to find your feet and feel at home in your new surroundings.

And, to give you a better idea of what it's like here, why not watch these video clips depicting the work and life of two of our GP and Dentist Colleagues?

Living in Shetland

We cheerfully admit that Shetland is not for everyone – if you want to go on the underground train to a West End Theatre then we're going to disappoint you – but for those looking for a less hectic pace and an indisputable quality of life then we should be on your list.

It is a land of many contrasts – rugged hills and flower-strewn meadows; large new houses and traditional crofts; ultramodern ships and small boats which can trace their ancestry back to Viking times. Islands which are distinctly Norse in character yet part of Scotland islands with a fascinating heritage and a timeless quality.

Watch myriads of seabirds over an ultramarine sea or the breathtaking loveliness of a reflected sunset. Listen to the sigh of the waves or the weird "drumming" of the snipe at dusk. Smell the heady fragrance of massed wildflowers or the evocative tang of peat smoke.

Shetland is a place which is small enough to make you feel welcome, yet large enough to find peace and that unmistakable feeling of spacious freedom; a place of friendly, hospitable people; a place embracing both modern technology and traditional industries with a unique culture reflected in music and literature; a place where you can enjoy the long, light nights of 'summer dim'; where you can walk, fish, ride, swim... or just relax; a place which offers choice.

Geography 60° North

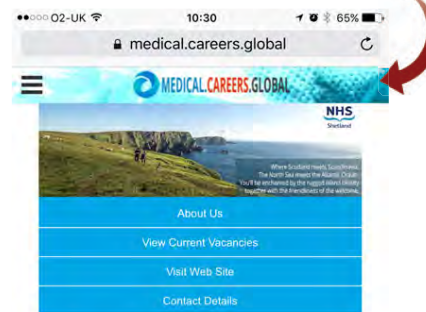

The islands of Shetland lie scattered like the pieces of an elongated puzzle some 93 miles (150 km) north of the Scottish Mainland. The capital, Lerwick is 211 miles (340 km) from the Scottish port of Aberdeen and only about 18 miles (29 km) more than this from Bergen in Norway and Torshavn in the Faroe Islands.

The 60-degree line of latitude lies across the South Mainland of Shetland, passing through the famous broch. There are over 100 islands of Mainland (351 square miles) and numerous skerries and islets along the coast.

The distant, northerly tip of Mainland, to Hermaness at the most northerly tip of Unst, is about 70 miles (113 km) North of Unst lies Huckle Flugga with its lighthouse perched 192ft. (59m) above sea level: the most northerly inhabited island in the British Isles.
